

Getting to grips with the teacher assessment of writing at the end of key stage 2

Venue: Guildhall Feoffment Community Primary School

Friday 2 March 2018

9.30 – 15.00

Course leader: Jo Shackleton - Independent consultant who works on behalf of the Standards and Testing Agency as a senior external moderator of key stage 2 writing.

Cost: £50 for one person from a school – additional teachers £35

This day's training will provide an opportunity for year 6 teachers and subject leaders to become familiar with the national moderation training materials for key stage 2 writing teacher assessment. It will focus on the following:

- exploring the changes to the revised teacher assessment guidance and frameworks;
- unpicking and applying the revised 'pupil can' statements for 'working at the expected standard' and 'working at greater depth within the expected standard';
- understanding the requirements of an external moderation visit and the importance of the professional discussion.

The course is suitable for year 6 teachers and KS2 writing leads, regardless of whether or not they expect an external moderation visit this year. Please note that the course is not suitable for colleagues who have applied to be a local authority moderator for KS2 writing this year, since the day will replicate national training already provided by the local authority.

Jo has been a teacher, a local authority adviser, an Ofsted inspector, and a member of the DfE Effective Practice Team. As an independent consultant, she has worked on behalf of the Standards and Testing Agency as a senior external moderator of key stage 2 writing. She is the author of 'Grammar Survival for Primary Teachers' and has worked with primary and secondary schools in Suffolk since 2012.
